

NEW HAMPSHIRE: The Case to Adopt Common College- and Career-Ready Standards and Assessments

NEW HAMPSHIRE AND OTHER STATES ARE MOVING TOWARD COLLEGE- AND CAREER-READY STANDARDS

- New Hampshire last revised its math and English language arts standards in 2006.
- Thirty-one states have aligned their high school graduation standards with college and career expectations. New Hampshire is not one of these states.¹
- The Common Core State Standards Initiative builds on the best state standards and goes further by internationally benchmarking standards and back mapping them for grades K–12.
- New Hampshire is one of 48 states whose governor and chief state school officer signed the Memorandum of Agreement to develop common core state standards in English language arts and math in June 2009.
- Per state law, the chief state school officer has authority to adopt standards in conjunction with the New Hampshire State Board of Education and the state's legislative oversight committee.

TEACHERS: IMPROVING STANDARDS HELPS STUDENTS

New Hampshire Teachers' Views on the Impact of Improving Standards on Academic Achievement²

STUDENT PROFICIENCY REMAINS OVERSTATED ON MOST STATE TESTS⁴

New Hampshire's Eighth-Grade Proficiency as Measured by Its State Tests and the National Assessment of Educational Progress (NAEP)

	New Hampshire	NAEP
Reading	70%	37%
Math	64%	43%

The average gap nationally between state- and NAEP-reported reading scores is 39 percentage points. New Hampshire's gap is 33 percentage points.

The average gap nationally between state- and NAEP-reported math scores is 30 percentage points. New Hampshire's gap is 21 percentage points.

STANDARDS ALONE ARE NOT ENOUGH: COMMON ASSESSMENTS ARE A NATURAL NEXT STEP

- Fifteen states currently administer a common Algebra II exam.⁵ New Hampshire is not one of these states.
- Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont are part of the New England Common Assessment Program (NECAP), testing students in grades 3–8 and 11 on reading/language arts, math, and science.
- Presently, more than forty states are in discussion about creating common assessments aligned to the common core state standards. States will decide by mid-June 2010 whether to formally join one or more consortia to compete for $350 million in federal funding for common assessments. New Hampshire is one of these states.

BY WORKING TOGETHER, STATES CAN SAVE MONEY AND IMPROVE TEST QUALITY⁶

Collectively, states currently spend $1.3 billion annually to develop, publish, administer, score, and report on tests.

THERE ARE COSTS TO NOT PREPARING STUDENTS FOR COLLEGE AND WORK⁷

COMMON STATE STANDARDS WOULD EASE TRANSITION FOR STUDENTS WHO MOVE FROM STATE TO STATE

In 2006, about 4,522 school-aged children moved to New Hampshire from another state and about 4,542 students moved from New Hampshire to another state.

BY GRADUATING STUDENTS PREPARED FOR COLLEGE, MONEY CAN BE SAVED ON REMEDIATION

If New Hampshire's high schools graduated all of their students ready for college, the state would save over $13.1 million a year in community college remediation costs and lost earnings.
