DROPOUTS AND POORLY PREPARED STUDENTS NEGATIVELY AFFECT THE ECONOMY

- Over 34,300 students did not graduate from Pennsylvania's high schools in 2010; the lost lifetime earnings in Pennsylvania for that class of dropouts alone total over $8.9 billion.¹
- Pennsylvania could save as much as $505 million in health care costs over the lifetimes of each class of dropouts had they earned their diplomas.²
- If Pennsylvania's high schools graduated all of their students ready for college, the state could save as much as $125 million a year in community college remediation costs and lost earnings.³
- Pennsylvania's economy could see a combination of crime-related savings and additional revenue of about $288 million each year if the male high school graduation rate increased by just 5 percent.⁴

BUILDING AND USING COMPREHENSIVE STATE DATA SYSTEMS ARE CRITICAL TO DRIVING IMPROVEMENT

- Pennsylvania has in place 8 of the 10 elements recommended by the Data Quality Campaign (DQC) as the start of a robust P–12 longitudinal data system. To date, only 12 states have all 10 elements in place.⁹
- Pennsylvania also has in place 2 of the 10 fundamental steps recommended by the DQC in order to change the culture around how data is used to inform decisions on improving system and student performance. To date, no states have taken all of the fundamental steps.⁹

OVER THREE QUARTERS OF STATES HAVE ADOPTED COMMON CORE STATE STANDARDS

Pennsylvania is one of 48 states that participated in the development of common core state standards in English language arts and math. It adopted the standards in July 2010.

NEARLY HALF OF THE NATION'S DROPOUTS ARE CONCENTRATED IN LESS THAN 2,000 HIGH SCHOOLS

These high schools have an extremely low promoting power of 60 percent or less, meaning that only 60 percent or fewer of freshman progress to senior year on time. Promoting power is a good estimate of the school's graduation rate. Generally, these schools have high proportions of minority and/or low-income students.

	Number of Federally Reported High Schools ¹² (SY 2007–08)	Number of High Schools with Low Promoting Power ¹³ (three-year average from 2006 to 2008)
Pennsylvania	598	54
Nation	15,675	1,883

An additional 38 high schools in Pennsylvania have a promoting power between 60 and 70 percent.¹⁴

Over one third of the nation's low-promoting-power high schools were identified as making Adequate Yearly Progress during SY 2006–07.¹⁵
